WELCOME

...to the Roman Archaeology Conference website

RAC is the premier international conference devoted to Roman archaeology. It is organised by the Roman Society every two years, in collaboration with a host venue, and attracts a broad international audience. The first conference was held in Reading in 1995.

The Society aims to expand the reach of the conference by holding it alternately in Britain and on the continent. In 2012 it went to Frankfurt, and in 2016 we were in Rome, as guests of Sapienza University of Rome and the British School at Rome.

Coronavirus (COVID-19)

The 2020 conference in Split has now been postponed until 7-9 April, 2021. Read the full statement here.

Conference proceedings are not published, but many of the sessions appear as monographs in the Journal of Roman Archaeology Supplementary Series. Go to the JRA website at <http://journalofromanarch.com/>

RAC and TRAC

The Theoretical Roman Archaeology Conference (which is held annually) normally collaborates with the Society to hold a combined RAC/TRAC every second year. Go to the TRAC website at <http://trac.org.uk/> to find details of TRAC in Split!
